CHAMBER IN ANNUAL MEET LAST NIGHT

Report of Secretary Referred to Audit Finance Group

DISCUSSED P. E. RATE

Members Will Be Urged to Give Cooperation

The annual meeting of the Glendale chamber of commerce was held Tuesday night, with 80 members in attendance. It was an informal session, the principal purpose of the meeting being to consider the annual report of Secretary J. M. Rhoades.

The report, after being highly commended, was ordered referred to the auditing and finance committee.

Action was taken which will result in every member of the organization being given an opportunity to assist personally in the upbuilding of Glendale. Secretary Rhoades was instructed to send a letter, which was read at the meeting, to every member. Each member is invited to make suggestions which he or she believes will be a good line for the chamber to work along throughout the year. When these suggestions have been received the work of the chamber will be planned along the lines suggested.

The increase in the passenger rates over the Pacific Electric line was brought up and given lengthy discussion. It was the general opinion that the matter of securing a return of the old rates should be prosecuted as vigorously as possible. At the close of the discussion, the matter was referred to the railroad and transportation committee, of which Attorney G. H. King is chairman, and the civics and county affairs committee, the chairman of which is Dr. Jessie A. Russell. The two committees are "on their toes" with regard to this proposition and are doing everything within their power to secure lower rates. The feeling prevailed that the chamber as a whole should get behind the city officials in their protest against the increased rates.

WILL DEDICATE CHAMBER ROOMS

Often Planned Function
Will Be Held Next Month

The formal opening of the new quarters of the Glendale chamber of commerce has definitely been set for the evening of Thursday, February 2. The exercises will be held in the auditorium, which will seat 500 people. At this time a program, on which very capable singers and speakers will appear, will be presented.

One of the principal features of the session will be the reception of more than 200 new members. Arrangements are being made to take care of these members and to make them feel right at home from the moment they are formally accepted.

Only members of the organization are being invited to the opening of the chamber's quarters. Following the opening exercises all of the offices and rooms of the chamber will be thrown open for inspection.

On Thursday afternoon an opportunity will be given the general public to inspect the beautiful quarters of the chamber. For this public inspection the doors will be open from 1 until 5 o'clock, and each person in Glendale and vicinity is personally invited to call and see how nicely the chamber is now situated.

HALF OF WORLD DOES KNOW OF LIFE'S TRAGEDIES

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Only the substitution of a baby carriage for a hearse marked the effort of an unemployed couple here to have a "regular funeral" for their first-born child.

By a desperate struggle, the parents, one of the hundreds of thousands of workless parents, managed to obtain a cemetery plot. They could not afford a hearse, so they laid their baby in a little coffin with enameled fittings, and trundled it to the cemetery, mourners and ministers accompanying.

Slang Phrase Taken as Topic for Foley in Listening Post

"None of your business!" Have you used this term? Of course you have and so James W. Foley has written something about it in tonight's "Listening Post," that will interest to you. Turn to it and see what he has to say.

The negro problem is treated by Dr. Frank Crane in his column on the editorial page this evening.

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day says that bandits are faring badly in some cases where policemen have used quick judgment. Mr. James believes that the positive cure for bandit activities is to kill the bandit on the spot.

There are other features on the editorial page in addition to splendid editorials on such subjects as "Peace for Ireland," "California Educators," "Problems of the Farmer," and "Complete Economic Union."

The editorial page is always worthy of your consideration. It is always educational, inspirational and uplifting.

Women Take Prominent Part in Washington Official Life

Miss Grace Abbott.

Women are taking a prominent part in official life at the nation's capital these days, and Miss Grace Abbott, who is head of the Children's Bureau of the United States government, is among those of prominence. Miss Abbott hails from Nebraska and has held several government positions of importance. She was formerly a school teacher in her home state. Her appointment to head the bureau was made in 1917, and she is one of two women that hold positions as bureau chiefs in the U. S. government. This bureau is part of the U. S. Department of Labor.

PRESIDENT WANTS PROFITEERS PUT IN PRISON

Big Effort Will Be Made to Force Prices
Down

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—All of the powers of the federal government will be used to force down prices and punish profiteers by jail sentences and fines, under orders issued by President Harding and his cabinet today.

A triple investigation of living costs will be made; to be followed by grand jury action wherever warranted. The departments of justice, labor and commerce have united to find out why prices remain high. Attorney General Daugherty, Secretary Davis and Secretary Hoover will confer in a day or two. Meanwhile, the criminal and secret service divisions of the departments of labor and justice will be coordinated to hunt down the profiteers. Daugherty has already taken these steps:

"Summoning federal and state officials to a conference in New York to agree on a concrete program to be applied all over the country."

Orders to United States district attorneys to rush to trial their cases against building material manufacturers and to double efforts to complete investigations of building material profiteering. The next step is designed to force down high rents.

The plans call for four school rooms, administration offices and supply rooms. The addition will face Acacia, and will run east of the present structure, being connected with it by an arcade on the north which will open into the central hall of the present building.

Mr. Lindsay indicated that his

GRAND VIEW MAIL SERVICE ACTION

Chamber Will Look Into
Plan for a Better
Delivery

A petition bearing the names of more than 150 residents of the Grand View district, asking for better mail delivery service, has been received by the Glendale chamber of commerce. The hope was expressed that the chamber will take this matter up immediately with the proper authorities and that, if possible, relief be secured.

It is generally known that the delivery service in the Grand View district is anything but satisfactory. If a person in Glendale mails a letter to someone living in the Grand View district, the letter travels from the Glendale office to Los Angeles, up to Burbank and from that office by rural carrier to the person to whom the letter is addressed, taking from two days to a week to make the circuit.

The petition has been referred to the civics and county affairs committee. The committee will have a meeting at 4 o'clock today to consider the matter, and the prospects are that official wheels will start rolling, and eventually better mail service for the Grand View people will be secured.

K. the plan and Mr. Lindsay was requested to prepare specifications on the basis of the plan so that advertising for bids can soon be started. The board voted to divide its advertisements for bids for the various buildings, between the two districts in Glendale and also to place unofficial advertisements in the Southwest Builder of Los Angeles. It is expected that bids can be opened January 31.

The plans call for four school rooms, administration offices and supply rooms. The addition will face Acacia, and will run east of the present structure, being connected with it by an arcade on the north which will open into the central hall of the present building.

HIGH OFFICERS IN ARMY ARE CALLED TO TESTIFY

Colonel Hahn Charged
With Directing One
Lynching

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—High army officers were called before the senate investigating committee today to answer to the charges that American soldiers were hanged without trial in France.

One of the officers called was Colonel Joseph D. Hahn of Camp Benning, Ga., charged by a dough boy witness with directing the lynching of a negro soldier at Gieves, France. Hahn at that time was a captain.

Another witness was Colonel Charles J. Symonds, of Camp Sherman, O., who commanded the American troops at Gieves, during the war. Only one soldier, a man found guilty of murder, was hanged at Gieves, Symonds declared.

Previous witnesses testified that two hangings took place there besides the lynching alleged to have been directed by Colonel Hahn.

Colonel Symonds scoffed at the charge against Captain Hahn, declaring that a lynching could not have occurred in the camp without word of it reaching him.

Guards and secret men patrolled the camps constantly, Symonds said, and were duty bound to report disorders. Colonel J. P. Fyffe of Chattanooga, Tenn., also testified there was but one hanging at Gieves. Fyffe was executive officer at the camp and said he was in intimate touch at all times with all activities.

HEALTH BOARD INSPECTS HOMES

Not Up to Law
Standard

According to officials of the health department that organization has been engaged for the past week in investigating sanitary conditions in the various homes for children and others.

The operatives state that while conditions such as were found in the home conducted by Mrs. Decker are not general, in the other homes sanitary conditions are not of the best and will have to be improved.

At present there are five homes for children here and these have all been inspected. Operatives report that the general condition is fairly good in the homes and that when proper sanitation, as required by law are completed, the home will meet with the approval of the department.

Boston Woman Hires Man to Thrash Her Hubby

If you can't do it yourself, ladies, hire a strong-arm man to do it for you. This is what Mrs. Ella M. Whitehead did when her husband publicly insulted her. She hired John Hartnett, a Providence, R. I., strong-arm man, to give him a beating, and he did. Result: Hubby had her in court on an attempted murder charge, but she explained to the judge that she had no intention of assassinating him, but felt that he deserved a licking. Whitehead, she claims, is old enough to be her father. She also told of having to call a policeman to eject another woman from her home, and is now seeking a divorce. The beating cost her a hundred dollars, and she says the satisfaction was worth double that sum.

GREAT MUSICAL TO BE PRESENTED ON SUNDAY NEXT

First Twilight Program
at Glendale Theater Announced

Glendale's first twilight musical will be given next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock by perhaps the most perfectly balanced sextet of singing artists that has ever been heard here. Harry Girard, the well known composer and musician, and now a resident here, has succeeded through his personal and professional standing in gathering together a group of artists, such as is rarely heard in combination, even in the largest cities.

The name of Trudy Shattuck, the international prima donna and light opera star, has been a household word throughout the United States, Australia, and the British empire. Likewise Carl Gantvoort, whose last operatic appearance in Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West," at the Majestic Theater, is easily recalled and whose personal appearance next Sunday is only made possible through the courtesy of Mr. Benjamin Hampton, who has Mr. Gantvoort under a long term contract.

Couple the names of Trudy Shattuck and Carl Gantvoort with James Burroughs, the sweet voiced lyric tenor of the Los Angeles Cathedral, one whom all of Southern California proudly claims as its own.

Likewise Agnes Cain Brown, the star in such productions as Henry W. Savage's "Sho Gun," Charles Emerson Cook's production of "The Rose of Alhambra," Joseph Blethen and Harry Girard's all-American production of "The Alaskan." These four names make a quartet of unusual musical possibilities. Now add the names of Virginia Ainsworth, contralto, and Harry Girard, bass-baritone, and you have a sextet that will be well worth hearing.

The complete program for Sunday afternoon is unavailable at this time, but it will be announced later. Frank C. Egan, founder and head of the Glendale school of music, drama and dancing promises a reading of Longfellow's "Hawthorne" in a musical setting by S. Cole and Taylor. Mrs. Harmon D. Ryus will accompany Mr. Egan on the piano, and Paul Carson will play the Glendale theater master organ.

Another unusual feature will be the first appearance in Glendale of Alma Murphy-Half, who specializes in James Foley's poems for children from seven to seventy.

INSANITY WILL BE UNANIMOUS SOON

Philadelphia Woman Says Noises Will Drive All Crazy

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—All us city folks will be in insane asylums unless something is done to stop city noises, if we are to take seriously the opinions of Mrs. Imogen B. Oakley, chairman of the Smoke Nuisance and Unnecessary Noise Committee of the Civic Club here. City noises are shattering our nerves, undermining our health, shortening our lives and driving us to insanity, according to Mrs. Oakley. Personal investigation has shown this to be true, she said.

Here are some of Mrs. Oakley's suggestions for lessening our chances of landing in the "booby hatch":

Prohibit the ringing of church bells. They are contrary to American public opinion against sectarianism.

"Alarms" emitting a musical note or scale should be carried on swift-moving vehicles. They should be the same for all vehicles; sirens, bells and so forth to be restricted to only in sudden danger of life.

Suppress street pianos. Prevent the ice-man, huckster and other vendors from rending the air with hoarse shouts by putting out signs telling what is wanted.

Newsboys should sell papers neatly—they can sell just as many. Auto trucks should not be permitted to thunder along residential streets, but should be confined to the business districts.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK TO GET NEW RECTORY TO NEW BANK SOON BE CONSTRUCTED

Work Will Be Started in Early Spring It Is Hoped Construction Work Continues Brisk in and Around City

It was rumored some time ago that Burbank was to have a new bank—newer than the one now in process of construction on West San Fernando boulevard, but it is now more than a rumor that this institution is coming at Verdugo avenue. Mr. Spazier says that work on the tract which is on the boulevard will begin within a few weeks but the plans for the building are not completed as yet and no detailed information is ready further than that it will be of brick construction with a frontage of 50 feet on the boulevard. Spazier, Church & Boorse constitute the firm which is erecting this bank, but for business reasons the personnel of the institution will not be given to the public for a time.

This same investment company which also built the attractive new public market and which had such a successful opening day last Saturday, expects to add another unit to this building. Mr. Spazier stated that he thought work would begin on it within two or three weeks, that in fact, it was expected to have been at it before now. This structure will have a frontage on the boulevard of 55 feet with a length of 70 feet. It will conform in architecture to the public market, expect that it will have straight piers instead of arches. It has not been decided whether there will be one or two stories.

It is reliably reported that a company of Hollywood investors are going to improve the corner of Tuja and San Fernando boulevard, with a fine, modern structure. With this done and the city market already here and the other splendid buildings to be erected by Spazier, Church & Boorse, this section of the boulevard will be well representative of a thriving Burbank. At the present rate of construction, San Fernando boulevard will shortly be built up solidly, then the next step will be to dismantle the smaller and older buildings and replace them with bigger and better ones. Thus do skyscraping cities develop.

Between Santa Anita and Providencia avenues on San Fernando boulevard, is to be erected a service station, 46x153 feet in size. Wilson & Basso of Long Beach have purchased this site and will erect the station, and a deal is on with the Western Auto Electric company of Los Angeles to lease the building.

PRAYER SERVICE

A new institution has been organized in the Christian church which is proving very helpful. It is a prayer service, conducted every Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in the new annex of the church. These prayer services at present are directed especially along the thought of the evangelistic meeting which the church will begin the last of the month.

PHYSICAL CLASS

The large room on the corner of the boulevard and Olive avenue has been temporarily rented by A. L. Mumford who expects to organize a physical culture class. The room is being fitted up with machines and physical culture devices such as artificial boatrowing, horizontal bars, and dumb-bells.

With some artists painting is more of a habit than an art.

According to plans being formulated, the Holy Trinity parish of Burbank will enjoy a fine new rectory in the near future. Rev. E. Leguayder says he hopes to have the work commenced not later than spring. It will be a frame structure but large and of the most modern type, while the cost will be about $9,000. A large living room of sufficient proportions to accommodate small gatherings will constitute the principal room of which there will be a total of nine. Adjoining the large room will be the rector's office. When the new rectory is completed, the present one will be sold and the proceeds applied on the new building. The parish now owns three lots and they are so situated that they form almost a square at the corner of Fifth street and Orange Grove avenue. The church and present rectory occupy a portion of this with ample room to enlarge the church when the growth of the congregation warrants it, while the lot facing on Orange Grove avenue is reserved for the new rectory.

With the beginning of the new year, the church's indebtedness of $1,500 was wiped out, the sum having been raised during the past year in addition to the general operating expenses, and above this enough remains in the treasury to pay for the interior decoration of the church. Of this sum, about $315 was cleared at the bazaar held by the women of the church. The contract for the work of decorating, has been let and will be done very soon.

RAIN-CARLSON CRASH NOT BAD

Fred Rain and Joe W. Carlson came off very fortunately in their automobile accident. Their cars were about demolished, but when it would not have been at all injured had they been seriously injured they escaped with but a few scratches. The accident occurred at 5:30 o'clock Sunday, on Olive avenue about a mile and a half out towards Hollywood. It is said that one of the cars turned out of its course to avoid a bad mud-hole and thus caused a head-on collision.

BURBANK PERSONALS.

W. E. Smith and family of Westminster, Orange county, has bought property at Magnolia and Pioneer avenues and is moving on to it. Mr. Smith has business in Hollywood.

C. O. Haefner of Dowagiac, Michigan, is in Burbank for a sojourn of several weeks. While here he is investigating business investments with the idea of moving here later. He was here 25 years ago, and says if he had then invested a few hundred dollars, he would now be a wealthy man.

T. B. Young and wife are spending a few days at Hemet in the San Jacinto mountains, on a hunting expedition.

MOVES SHOP

C. M. Lewis is moving his paint shop nearer the boulevard where he is repairing the small building on Olive avenue in the rear of the building formerly occupied as the Burbank pharmacy.

NEWBERRY CASE TO GO TO A JURY BOARD HEARS COMMITTEE PLANS

Michigan Senator on Thin Ice as Case Draws to End

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Newberry case is about to "go to the jury." The verdict of the senate as to whether the Michigan senator shall retain his seat is expected today or tomorrow. If it is delayed, it will be because the senate thinks the whole matter of Newberry's expensive senatorial campaign in Michigan in 1918 ought to be further investigated by a committee before the senate votes. It is admitted that Newberry's fate may not be determined until the roll call has actually begun.

Three of the half dozen "uncertain" republican senators have decided to vote against seating Senator Newberry, one has decided to vote for him and two are still in doubt.

This, it was stated today by one of the group, is the lineup resulting from Newberry's personal defense and as a result of conferences among the "uncertain" group.

Newberry's managers today conceded the loss of three previously doubtful republican votes. They were continuing their missionary work on Senator Poindexter, Washington, who still was far from making up his mind. Capper, Kansas; Jones, Washington, and Sutherland, West Virginia, were definitely claimed by the anti-Newberry forces. McNary, Oregon, was claimed for Newberry, but said himself he found it hard to cast his vote that way.

McNary indicated, however, he probably would vote to seat Newberry, basing his action on Newberry's personal defense. Both sides claimed Willis, Ohio. Lenroot, Wisconsin, seemed to be leaning from Newberry, but was keeping his own counsel.

The situation in general showed a trend against Newberry.

France, of Maryland, republican, confirmed earlier predictions as to his position by announcing definitely that he would vote to seat Newberry.

When the senate resumed discussion of Newberry today, Senator Caraway, Arkansas, continued the democratic attack.

The latest poll of Newberry's managers made up today and based on their latest information, showed a vote of 48 for him and 43 against him, with Johnson, California, and Weaver, Maryland, not voting, and Crow, Pennsylvania, paired with Kendrick, Wyoming.

new high school on the site recently selected. In his opinion, this matter should be taken up by the civic committee of the chamber. Mrs. Russell responded and said that the matter of building the new high school had been discussed by the committee and would be talked of further but that the committee had agreed that before a high school was built a sewer system must be planned.

Charles B. Guthrie told his dream of seeing a civic center occupying the present high school site. He said that when he first came to Glendale and saw the high school street were occupied by the high school he had the idea that the buildings housed some large institution of more magnitude than a high school. He said that when he learned the buildings were the high school units he felt that it was a wonderful site for a civic center and would serve the city better in that capacity than as a high school.

L. H. Wilson, chairman of the advertising committee, was introduced to the directors and in turn introduced W. H. Reeves, E. P. Brown, W. B. Phelan, Frank A. Parish and Mr. Stone as his co-workers on the committee. Messrs. Cutting and Twining, also of the committee, were absent.

Mr. Wilson stated that while the committee has not held a meeting yet, they are ready to start the work of handling the publicity at an early date. He said that the first work of the committee would be the selection of a slogan and that suggestions from members of the board of directors and of the chamber will be appreciated.

The matter of the suit filed against the city regarding the establishment of a cemetery was discussed and referred to the civic committee with instructions to cooperate with the city in any way possible to prevent the cemetery being within the city limits.

H. A. James, formerly of England, was introduced and told several stories of the English inability to see a joke or to repeat a joke correctly. His stories evoked peals of laughter.

Upon completing his stories, Mr. James told the directors that his object in addressing them was to secure their approval and co-operation in the matter of selling stock to a selected clientele in a sacred film company that is being organized by Mr. James and his associates. He said that a general canvass for subscriptions to stock would not be made but that a few friends of members of the corporation would be given the opportunity to purchase stock. He said that the purpose of the company is to supply Christian pictures for use in the churches and in educational work and that only Christian actors would be employed by the company. He stated that the pictures will be produced in such a manner that they could be sold to exhibitors at a reasonable price, as no excessive salaries will be paid.

At the conclusion of Mr. James' address he was asked to give several of his original monologues before the members of the chamber of commerce at the formal dedication on the night of February 2, which he consented to do.

He then introduced as attorney at record for the state, himself and Assistant District Attorney Leo Friedman and for the defense Gavin McNab, Charles Brennan, Nathan Schmullwitz, Milton Cohen and Joseph McInerney.

LATE MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

plans for the Grand View school would be ready for admission next Tuesday night. They will be similar in character to those of the Acacia school but will provide for only the main portion of the building at this time.

The board was also assured that Alfred Priest, who is drafting plans for the new Intermediate, would be ready to submit them next Tuesday.

The purchase of supplies at this time is made necessary because the board bought only a half-year's supply last summer in the expectation that prices would decline. Its expectations have been realized on several articles, notably on paper towels, largely used. Also on playground balls which can now be had for $13 a dozen against $22 last summer.

The lowest bid for the 73 school seats and desks and teacher's desk and chair for which the board advertised was $891.55, and as the three bids were practically identical the board requested the representatives of competing firms to send samples for the inspection of Superintendent White and board members Thursday, when one of the bids will be accepted.

On a report of Miss Saxton that boys had been playing on the Magolia school grounds without supervision, that they had entered the building and committed damage, Superintendent White was instructed to investigate the matter and ascertain if possible the boys involved and take such action as he deemed wise.

The board reaffirmed rules already laid down for the guidance of Superintendent White, viz: That he is not to grant the use of school records for any advertising purpose, however worthy; that in his official capacity he is not to issue any endorsement of either business or charitable projects.

The board granted the request of the Columbus avenue Parent-Teacher Association that lights be installed in the kindergarten room that it may be used for "Father's Night" meeting of the association, and Mr. White was requested to take the necessary steps to provide the lights.

ANOTHER POWER IN JAPAN IS ILL

Prince Yamagata, 85,
Said to Be Passing
Out Slowly

TOKIO, Jan. 11.—The illness of Prince Yamagata has become much more serious, it was learned here today. The last leader of the "genro," who has never lost a fight, is now battling the final contest of his career against age and sickness—and the odds are against the old warrior and statesman, who for many years has been the real ruler of Japan, politically.

Yamagata, 85 years old—a year older than Marquis Okuma, who died two days ago—will remain boss to the last. Sick though he is, he is still the most powerful figure behind the scenes in the Japanese government.

Yamagata is the sole survivor of the original group of dynamic men known as "genro" or "elder statesmen," who bridged the gap between medievalism and modernity.

But the "genro" will die when Yamagata dies. There will be no one to step into the sandals of the grim, taciturn old patriot. There will be no place for such a man to fill, if the man existed. For the conditions, the force of circumstances that made possible the "genro" have been passing as new Japan developed.

From Yamagata's beautiful villa near Odawara—an hour or so from Tokio, amid pine trees and hills, the sea sounding on one side and the sacred mountain Fuji-Yama, soaring its snow-clad crest on the other—the old field marshal continues, from his last sick bed, to exercise his leadership.

From the capitol, party leaders and officials are constantly calling to confer with "him who must be obeyed"—and to obey him. "But why?" I asked one of the shrewdest of modern leaders, a figure of considerable consequence in public affairs. "Why must Yamagata be obeyed?"

He smiled quizzically. "It is not wise to disobey him," he said. "Few men have dared to do so—and they have regretted it greatly. Strange things seem to happen to such men. They invariably have unfortunate experiences. Their personal or public business affairs go wrong. No, it is unwise to go against Yamagata."

BIG NEWS MAYBE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 11.—Babe Ruth, king of swat, will confer with Judge Landis in Chicago next week and may ask that his suspension be lifted, he said today. The Bambino, who is the vaudeville headliner here this week, promised "big news for all you boys" after interviewing Judge Landis.

FACULTY ORDERS COLLEGE 'GHOST' TO VANISH

"The Ghost," a publication of the students at George Washington university, Washington, D. C., which has shocked not only President Howard L. Hodgkins and noted women club leaders at the capital, has been banned by the college head, but not before 200 copies of the paper had been sold. The president was amazed when he received his copy and glanced over it. On the cover was a drawing of a young lady who was anything but modest. But on the inside such pictures as Modern Egypt and the Peeling of the Belles made the president gasp for breath. However, the board of spirits which edits the publication are indignant over the president's ban, and they say that The Ghost is no snappier than Froth, the Punchbowl and other college publications. The above photographs show the cover of The Ghost, to which exception was taken, and below is Miss Winifred De Voe, artist student, whose spicy pictures on the inside pages shocked President Hodgkins.

WHAT THE SUN SHOWED THE PRISONER

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

The poor Red Dog lay still in the icy jail of a barn where its master had tied it. It was just wide awake enough to guess it was only dreaming of its dear little boy—that it was hungry and thirsty and cold, and many miles away from Louie Thomson. So it kept its eyes squeezed shut, because it couldn't bear to open them and find how unhappy it really was. But the jolly old sun kept poking and stroking its tickly red ears with the slim yellow finger of light it just managed to slant into the dark box stall.

There's something very queer about the sun. He knows ever and ever so much more than the stars, because some time or other nearly every day he peeks into nearly every corner of the world. But he never tells anything, so it's no use to ask him.

Maybe he's so sure everything will come out right in the end he doesn't believe in telling, as you know the stars sometimes do. Maybe that's why he wiped their reflection off the face of Dr. Muskrat's pond. Maybe he knew that this red dog was the very one the doctor was asking about ever so far away—for distance is nothing to the sun. Or maybe he didn't. But he certainly seemed determined to make the poor fellow look up at him.

After a long while the dog did open its eyes and stretch some of the stiffness out of itself. It blinked at the high, narrow window where the sun was peeking in. Then its ears pricked. It saw at a glance what the kind old sun was trying to show it!

What did the red dog care about

Its Forepaws Caught the Window Sills and Its Hind Ones Clawed at the Cracks in its Prison Walls heart danced. Now what lay between it and Louie Thomson? Only the miles its master had driven in his car the night before. How it leaped for the sheer delight of feeling free! How it barked the good news at all the little birds! Then it raced down the road, wetting its thirsty tongue in all the tempting puddles as it ran. But it kept an ear cocked behind it.

NEXT STORY: THE SURPRISING RABBIT.

GUESS CONTEST NEALE & GREGG

A novel guessing contest is being conducted by the Neale & Gregg Hardware company. One of the show windows has been filled with saws of various sizes and types, prizes being offered for the persons coming nearest to guessing the number of teeth in all saws on exhibition. They are the Henry Diston & Sons company saws. This is the largest saw manufacturing concern in the United States. It is claimed that each saw undergoes at least 100 inspections before it is sent out to the trade. The contest started Monday noon and up to this time almost 100 guesses have been registered. It will continue for ten days, at the close of which time the teeth in the saws will be counted and the prizes awarded to the winners.

ENGLISH GIRLS ARE GETTING BACK

LONDON, Jan. 11.—English girls are recovering from the masculinity forced on them by the war. The mannish woman was never very popular, and such compliments as that of a young man who told his good-looking tennis partner that she played "like a thwarted woman" did their work. Eight in ten women in recent days in Hyde Park are declared to have been riding side-saddle.

WINE GROWERS IN MARNE WORRIED

Thousands of Bottles of Wine on Hand, No
Market

PARIS, Jan. 11.—The wine growers of the Marne find themselves face to face with an unparalleled situation—hundreds and thousands of bottles of champagne stocked in their cellars and no market for it. The fault lies chiefly with the Parisian clients of the night cafes, who have forsaken the costly habit of ordering champagne as the prelude to a happy evening.

Ordinary wine may not add the same exhilaration to a Montmartre party as a bottle of champagne, but it is far more within the reach of the customary client at a time when champagne retails at anywhere from 60 to 100 francs a bottle, according to the brand and the locality in which it is consumed.

An inferior brand of so-called champagne may be had at from 30 to 40 francs a bottle, but there is almost no market for this, it being noticed that the client who will spend this amount prefers the real thing.

The export of champagne has almost ceased owing to prohibition in the United States and the prohibitive import tariff levied in England and Germany, so that the wine growers are faced with the lamentable prospect of having to consume their own product if they are to prevent the accumulation in their cellars.

COP SAYS CANNOT BE A CHRISTIAN

Roy Says Cop Cannot Be a Good Man and Stay
on Force

MARION, O., Jan. 11.—"I don't hold anything against the Marion police force, but I don't think a man can be a good Christian and be a policeman anywhere."

Roy D. Brown, who made that declaration, resigned from the Marion police force after he became converted in a revival conducted at the Holy Nazarene church here. "I've got to do it," Brown told Police Chief James W. Thompson. "I am just following the dictates of the Lord and want to be square with Him and my fellow Christian workers."

Brown served as an uptown patrolman from February to December. He served in the World War and came to this city at the close of the war. He is 30, married and has one child, a girl of four.

"No, no man can be a good Christian and serve on a police force and do the things that the head of the department expects him to do and the things that the people expect him to do. I don't mean that a man can't be honest and be a policeman," Brown said. "But there are so many things a policeman has to do that don't square with my newborn conscience. I see things differently now. I don't think it's right to arrest a man unless you think it's right."

"Yes, there is no doubt that today if Jesus Christ came back and said he was the Savior he would be arrested and thrown into prison; no more police work for him."

Since quitting the force Brown has been unable to secure work, but he is confident that he will not be without work long. "Any man who is willing to do an honest day's work for an honest day's wage ought not to have to loaf long."

JACKIE COOGAN AT T.D.L. THEATER

Little Artist Fills House
Last Night in First Run

The T. D. and L. theater was crowded last night. Ralph Allan stated that 2500 patrons visited the T. D. and L. theater yesterday to see Jackie Coogan in "My Boy." It is wonderful picture—one that will be remembered. It strikes the hearts of everyone who saw it and proved a great success.

Everyone should really see "My Boy"—it is just that kind of a picture—the grown-ups and the children, all appreciate it. Deep in sympathy, humorous—very humorous in spots—lovable. It "gets right into one" in a way that seems to recall the "boy" or "girl" of us all—bringing back recollections of ourselves as youngsters, and for the children it sparkles with comedy and light bits of wholesome understanding.

It offers real entertainment, real enjoyment. See it. Besides "My Boy" "The White Mouse," a dramatic tale of the northwest mounted police with Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery and Ethel Grey Terry was offered, as was "The Advisor," featuring Lloyd Hamilton, the comedian, a clever bit of nonsense that delights the audience. The whole program is a winner. Geo. Olsen's musical selections were greatly appreciated and received much applause.

HELP FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The critical financial condition of the farmer is engaging a growing share of President Harding's attention in connection with the agricultural conference which meets here January 23. He considers the situation so serious that he is planning to open the conference in person with an address outlining the need of relief.

According to the eternal fitness of things, a duck of a girl should marry a quack doctor.

M'ALPINES WILL BURY HATCHET

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—A reconciliation, as the climax of a series of sensational law suits, has been effected between Mr. and Mrs. Reynold P. McAlpine, prominent family of Altadena's million-acre colony, according to announcement today by Mrs. McAlpine. The McAlpines are members of Rochester, N. Y., families whose fortunes total $20,000,000.

"I simply sought to draw my husband from evil influences which were preying upon him," said Mrs. McAlpine. "I've lost every suit I've brought, but I won out in the end, for Reynold has just wired that he is coming back to me."

Mrs. McAlpine's suits were to force her husband to undergo a sanity examination. Her experience in law, she said, has cost her $50,000.

MUST BE MARRIED TO GET LICENSE

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Licensing of architects is recommended by Lady Astor, pioneer woman member of parliament. Her first requirement for a license would be a wife and three children.

"No man is qualified to design a house who has not a wife and three children," she said at an architect's luncheon—"the children to show the wife what's needed in a house and to wife to tell the husband."

STATE WITNESSES WANT THEIR PAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—Demand for witness fees before accepting summons as witnesses against Roscoe Arbuckle was made today by Alice Black and Zey Evron, show girls who figure as the star witnesses in the prosecution of Arbuckle on charges of taking the life of Virginia Rappe. The two girls indicated to District Attorney Matthew Brady that they were not anxious to testify and added that they both were out of funds and employment. They could not get work they said, because of the notoriety they had received in connection with the case.

PARIS MAY STOP WEEK-ENDS OFF

PARIS, Jan. 11.—It is proposed to upset the traditional progress of the Paris working week by annulling the Saturday afternoon holiday. This measure is being contemplated as a substitute for a reduction in wages in the larger wholesale organizations and notably in the dressmaking establishments.

At present Paris goes on a holiday at noon on Saturday and remains "en fete" until Monday morning. The thousands of "Midi-nettes" who work in the large tailoring concerns will undoubtedly enter vigorous protest against violation of their playtime.

Truths in Epigram

There is in the worst of fortune the best of chances for a happy change.—Euripides (484-406 B. C.).

Consider the little mouse, how sagacious an animal it is which never entrusts its life to one hole only.—Plautus (254 (?)—184 B. C.).

Fortune is like glass—the brighter the glitter, the more easily broken.—Syrus (42 B. C.).

COMPLETE ECONOMIC UNION

The Allied Supreme council will call an international financial and economic conference in which Russia and Germany will be invited to participate. Before the former will be acceptable, however, it must give surety to cease the spreading of its hateful propaganda. In other words, it must consent to be a nation attending to its own business. At present it seeks to thrust mischievous fingers into every quarter of civilization. It still holds to the idea of instituting bloody revolution everywhere.

Were Russia to cease trying to run the world and cease to neglect any effort to run itself, it would present an aspect wholly different. If Lenin and his regime are so set that their minds cannot be changed, there is no salvation apparent for Russia that does not as a preliminary, involve their complete and final overthrow.

Germany is far different. It is struggling under difficulties that the military mania, so long cultivated there, brought upon it. There is no denial that it is struggling bravely. Its people are working. They work for very little, but they are faithful to their tasks. Their energy is needed to round out the full complement of the organized energy of civilization, just as the broad fields of Russia must be made to produce once more.

There cannot be a perfect restoration of the industrial mechanism that gives the world the raw and finished products the world must have, while Germany and Russia, stand each apart, not functioning as an integer in the industrial and economic establishment.

It would be to the advantage of the world if Germany's currency could be restored to approximate normal, and if the occasion for Russia to eat the bitter bread of charity were to pass. Doubtless it is to hasten such changes that they are invited to confer with nations that have regarded them not merely as alien but as outcast.

PEACE FOR IRELAND

The treaty between Great Britain and Ireland has received the signatures of both parties. This is looked upon as the augury of peace such as Ireland had not known for long. There still is some discontent, as the Sinn Fein became divided, but there is a feeling that Ireland will prove itself worthy of the status it has won, by permitting the majority to rule.

The long and sanguinary contest, that ends with the signing of this treaty, has been more than a threat to the safety of the peoples directly concerned. In the United States were many who had no real interest in the merits of the controversy, and indeed, but scant knowledge of it, who conceived it to be their duty to take sides with Ireland. This was not due to love for Ireland but grew out of hatred for England. As a consequence there were public activities in the United States on behalf of the Sinn Fein. These were contrived with a cunning purpose of making them appear to be official.

Many residents of England, as shown by private correspondence, believed that the conduct of Americans had been such as might be construed as "unfriendly act." Diplomatic England, however, was too wise to accept a view that really would have been a misinterpretation of the circumstances.

Ireland as a free state will start upon its career with the best wishes of all but the few to whom contention is a delight, and hatred a fixed habit.

CALIFORNIA EDUCATORS

Last year the Carnegie Institute made a careful survey of freshmen in universities and colleges of the United States. The result of this was determination that such students in the California Institute of Technology held first rank, and those in the University of California second. This is a proud record. It may be regarded as a fair indication of the type of student developed in the schools of this coast.

Dr. Robert Millikan of the California Tech gave these facts as incidental to a recent address delivered in Los Angeles. He added much of value touching the general subject of education. Strong emphasis was laid by him upon the importance of straight thinking. "No one bluffs in physics," said the speaker.

It is true that in the mental sciences one may adopt theories not susceptible either of proof or disproof. They seem reasonable, logical and comfortable. In physics, the man must know. His judgment is formed as he observes the unfolding of immutable laws. The doctor thought that as mental discipline, scientific research had taken the place of the classics.

California is becoming an educational center. There is perhaps no more striking single demonstration of this than the fact that it draws to its seats of learning, such men as Dr. Millikan, and others perhaps equally well known for achievement.

PROBLEMS OF THE FARMER

One of the problems of the farmer is to make farming pay. Probably this will be the basis of deliberations at the National Agricultural conference to be held in Washington this month. There is a general unanimity of opinion that the farmer has a right to expect that his arduous business shall yield him a reasonably comfortable living. At present it is not doing this.

Prejudice has been expressed against an agricultural bloc in the senate. The farmers desire a fair deal. Evidently they have organized their efforts to procure such a deal. They have the same authority for acting in concert as pertains to any other line of useful industry. Other interests assuredly have acted in concert, often with success. They have succeeded even when they sought more than was their due. Thus have the people of the country found occasion to talk about "special privilege." Unquestionably some idle talk has been indulged in respecting this matter; most of the talk has been based on solid fact.

Warehouses are full of wool that the farmer cannot sell. Other warehouses are full of hides for which there is no demand. A farmer would be wasting his time in taking a hide to market. Cotton in the field last season was not worth the picking. Nebraska farmers began burning corn for fuel as soon as cold weather set in. Yet the finished products of wool and of leather and cotton reach the consumer, in many instances, on the level of war prices.

What "bloc" has managed so deftly to accomplish this sort of thing? While science has been attacking the law of gravitation, the law of supply and demand has been attacked and tampered with by gentlemen of highly developed commercial instinct. The public foots the bill. The farmer, whose work is at the very foundation of prosperity, gets little or nothing. The structure of a prosperity that ignores the farmer is erected on the sands. Yet when the farmer, after lean years that should have been reasonably fat, and in face of a barren prospect, comes forward to ask the reason and seek a remedy, he is accused of trying to run the senate and the country.

The farmer has not been treated justly. He is not being allowed a decent price for products that reach the consumer at a price outrageously high. No wonder he protests, and no wonder that he has popular sympathy.

"Mirrors of Washington," being anonymous portrayals of public men, is receiving wide notice, much of it unfavorable. The anonymous writer of a letter usually gets himself despised, and receives too much attention when not ignored. It is not easy to see how such a writer, using the medium of the press, has any moral advantage over one of the other type.

An American woman, now living abroad, seeks the aid of the United States government in recovering money she lent to a fly-by-night prince who, for a few months, until shooed away, had occupied the throne of Albania. It seems that she had no security, and did not even take a note. But think of the honor of having staked a sprig of royalty when he desired to buck the game at Monte Carlo, and had the mischance to be broke! Probably the woman will get nothing but sympathy, and very little of that.

In a conversation between husband and wife she generally does the talking and he does the listening.

No matter how high a man may fly, he's got to come down to earth occasionally for board and lodging.

If women were unable to see the fine clothes other women wear they would have fewer wrinkles.

NEGRO SONGS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The negro problem in the United States is usually considered in one of three aspects.

First, as a labor question:—His competition with the whites is resented for the old reason that his scale of living is lower.

Second, as a political question:—The injection of a mass of ex-slaves into the voting population brought its inevitable confusion.

Third, as a social problem:—The negro cannot be argued or legislated out of his status of a human being, and as such he has to get along in some way with white human beings.

There is another aspect of the negro question, however, which has been neglected, and that is the artistic and aesthetic aspect.

While the negro is inferior to the Anglo-Saxon in the rougher and more practical activities of civilization there are certain regions of sentiment where he is superior.

In one realm of feeling the negro is distinctly superior, and that is music.

The only entirely original music produced in the United States, and perhaps in the world, in recent times has been the negro melodies. They are the products of pure and vigorous creative imagination.

Natalie Curtis Burlin recently got out a series of four pamphlets of negro folk songs, wherein there is presented to us, in a striking way, the musical genius of the negro.

The black man produced his music, as all true music is produced, as a by-product of his work, his play, and his passion.

He is primarily the creator of the work song. The pamphlets referred to contain interesting examples. For instance, there is the "Peanut-Pickin' Song," which grew out of the times when the slaves of all ages gathered round the open bonfire and picked the harvested peanuts from their stems:

"I kin fill dis basket if I choose,
Den Massa gwine give me Chris'mus shoes,
Two red han'kerchiefs an' a walkin'-cane,
Den I's gwine strut down de Big House lane."

There was the "Hammerin' Song," which comes from the mines of Virginia, where the workmen chanted a simple refrain and were led by a "header," or leader, who received extra pay for his ability in improvisation.

Besides these there is "Chicka'hanka," used by workers on the railroad, imitating the puffing of locomotives; "Lisa Jane," one of the many songs improvised for dances; the "Cotton-Pickin' Song," the "Corn-Shuckin' Song," and others.

And no mention has been made of the largest field of all, which is that of the spiritual songs and religious melodies. But the point of it all is that the negro unconsciously thinks musically. To the white man, music is a luxury. To the negro, it is life itself.

THE LISTENING POST

In the olden days when we were young and hasty, someone inquired about something personal. And sometimes we replied, youthfully and hastily:

"None of your business."
Which was definitely rude.
But carried an air of finality.

The inquiry was a personal and impertinent one. Although many questions that we call impertinent are really pertinent. But they offend our sense of pride. Wound our amour propre as we say. And so we return the rude reply.

But there are many questions that may seem rude and out of place that are pertinent and proper. Depending to some extent upon who asks them. And the spirit in which they are asked.

A great many things, of course, are none of my business. Your affairs are not mine. And you claim the right to conduct your personal affairs as you choose.

You resent the intrusion of curiosity. But there are other impulses than curiosity that may prompt the asking of a question. There is interest.

So when I ask you what you intend to do in the future of your life.

You may with rudeness and yet within your personal rights reply:

"None of your business."
But I am not asking because I think it is my business.

I am asking because I think it is very much your business.

And I want you realize how much and how important a part of your business it is.

The Boss, for instance:

He might drop into the office sometimes and say:

"How much money are you making now?"

And you might keep within your rights and say:

"None of your business."

But I am not asking because I think it is my business.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Bandits in southern California have not been having a pleasant time lately. Now and again a policeman has ended the career of one or more of the fraternity. Of a group recently guilty of the killing of two policemen, one is dead and the rest in jail, with slim prospect of getting out, but the gallows in plain sight. A number of criminals of the desperate type are being pursued, and wherever they are, realize that they are not more than a few jumps ahead of peace officers under instructions to shoot to kill.

Nevertheless banditry seems to be clung to with a strange pertinacity. Only last week two boys undertook the game, beginning, as custom seems to demand, by stealing an automobile. The victim they selected, happened to be a policeman off duty, but he had his pistol along, and it was on duty. The dying youngster of the pair issued a statement setting forth that the path of crime was not rose-strewn. He desired to warn other boys against undertaking to tread it. The second youth is in jail. A long prison term must be his only salvation. If granted probation he would be following precedents innumerable, were he to resume a career of outlawry.

The positive cure for bandit activities is to kill the bandit on the spot. A man who describes himself as being "as intense American as there is living" takes the trouble to write a letter setting forth that the United States was as much to blame as Germany for the Lusitania tragedy. During the war the prisons of this country fairly bulged with Americans of about the degree of intensity indicated. No newspaper writer well could enter into controversy with a person of the type.

One is bound to respect the frankness of Robert C. Avery, prohibition agent for this part of the state. His official superior asked him as to the complaint that the enforcement of prohibition had been a shameful pretense here. Mr. Avery replied that the people knew it because he had told them. Of course prohibition could be enforced, but the process would involve some changes. Those charged with enforcement would endeavor to perform their sworn duty. Respectable citizens who defy the constitution would have to be induced to become law-abiding. Neither phase of the change should be an impossible task.

Many newspaper men will feel sorry for Mayor Moore of Philadelphia in relation to the death of his son in this state. The senior Mr. Moore, known to intimates as "Hammy," was a newspaper man, and so good a one that he was sent to congress. He never was won away from his early affiliations, and the atmosphere of the newsroom suits him yet. He did so well in congress that they made him mayor, since when he has kept right on doing well.

A brief telegram from Chicago says that ten thousand penniless men walk the streets of that city and that a thousand of them have to sleep in the open.

Doubtless a great majority of these men would be glad to work. An economic system that permits profiteering, and gives rise to the impulse to strike, must be held responsible for many things. It is difficult for a penniless man to retain his self-respect. Loss of self-respect is a long step in the direction of crime.

Mrs. Peete, in the penitentiary on a life sentence, possibly is not to be blamed for desiring to get out. This is a characteristic more nearly human and normal than many she has displayed. The attempt is to bring about her release on technical ground, a fact likely to be construed as a confession that it has no real merit. The story that if granted a new trial she will tell the truth about the murder of Denton, exculpating herself and shifting the responsibility to others, whom she has had ample time and chance to drag into publicity, of course strikes everybody as insolent balderdash.

Police judges continue to send reckless drivers to jail, but the supply of offenders apparently is inexhaustible. Perhaps it would be a good plan to impose the extra penalty of forfeiture of license, the prisoner upon emerging to be deprived of the right to drive for a period of four times the length of his term. Thus the offender who serves six months would have two years thereafter in which to patronize the street car and think it over.

As he entered and left the car at peril of his life from a lot of autoists who had not yet felt the softening and regenerating influence of a cell, very likely he would get a new point of view, and ultimately come to regard homicide by automobile as wrong.

Five great countries have agreed to abolish the use of poison gas in war. This means far more than appears on the face of it. It really means that five great nations have agreed to abolish war. Borah has not been heard from. Probably he would regard the abolition of poison gas as a curtailment of his own freedom of speech.

Flour sent from this country to Russia will not be doled out in any part to the bolshevik army. Doubtless that organization will make its usual gallant efforts to steal it, but such exigency will be guarded against.

It would be an excellent thing for Russia were the army to get so hungry as to disband and go to work.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Now and then—not often, but now and then—my work takes me down a half-lighted, shadowy, mean street at night. One block away are the glaring arcs and the roar and the animation of a great thoroughfare. This dark street seems peopled by mean and furtive creatures. One feels rather than sees hastily withdrawn glances. The women who pass along this dingy passage seem to prefer the darker shades.

Recently I have been haunted by an odd sense of failure when I tramped down its dingy bricks. I felt that somewhere in that dark army was a figure I should know. Somewhere I had encountered a glance I should have recognized. As time went on this impression became more definite. I could even mark the change in attitude of that poor ghost. At first, it seemed to me, she had shrunk as though she feared recognition. Then came bravado. Of late she had but marched past me, stealing one hasty look from a corner of her eye. She left herself secure.

Then, last night, I met her face to face and knew her. Now, she is nothing. Then, she was an orphan and friendless. Recurring illness, the repeated loss of work through no fault of her own, a tragic failure to establish herself definitely, had brought her under the notice of one of the rich women of the city. The rich woman was truly charitable, if true charity consists only in the giving of money. Because of her kindness the girl lost that fear of poverty—of a total wrecked, dollarless poverty that haunts every pretty girl alone in a city—and became almost beautiful. Then one day her benefactress cast her off.

"I am afraid she is not a good girl," she said. Others who knew the girl believed in her, but it was too late. She had disappeared. Of her struggles to maintain herself, of her efforts to keep her head above water, I know nothing. I only know that she failed. It is an extraordinary fact that some of those who give most freely to charity are incredibly cruel.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Down in Oklahoma they are taking prohibition so seriously that they propose to oust officials neglecting to enforce it. Pretty radical.

Five great powers agree to abolish submarine attacks on merchant ships. Pretty soon Brisbane will explain how this is a move directly in promotion of war.

Russia soviets fail to appreciate American generosity, but find that American food agrees with the digestion.

Although suicide may indicate insanity, an apparent attempt at suicide is likely to represent a bluff.

Mrs. Peete seems unable to accept the belief that the law against murder ever was intended to be operative.

Discovery of gold in the sands of a German river may help solve the problem of reparation.

One argument against the purchase of Lower California is that it is not needed; another that it is not for sale.

No more efforts are to be made to fix the guilt of causing war upon any individuals. However, almost anybody could write a fairly correct list of the guilty.

On the seventh of January only fifteen had been killed by auto in Los Angeles for 1922. The year was started on Tuesday Club Hears Lecture By Mrs. Reid

The lecture by Mrs. Emma Reid of Long Beach on "Solar Magnetism," which was the feature of this week's meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, was quite different from anything heretofore presented on its calendar and probably of interest to many who have delved along the line of occult and other obscure forces.

While she did not elucidate her theories but alluded to them in a discursive way, she made clear her belief in planetary control of human destiny, which would amount to immutable fate and foreordination. She referred to the zodiacal year and the supposed dominating influences of the twelve months under their zodiacal names and then spoke of the 26,000 years which it is estimated is required for our solar system to complete its orbit, applying the same zodiacal system which would make a month of that great cycle 2000 years, and a day 70 years.

She declared that in approximately 1881 we began the passage from the Piscean period to the Aquarian period, and have now arrived at about the middle of the first day of seventy years.

The Piscean age included the time of Christ, she said, and was commonly called the dark age. Christ had to come when he did because the dark age was coming, and the psychological effect was needed. The potency of that influence has enabled humanity to come through the dark age as well as it has, she said.

Water, she indicated, is the element of Pisces, and during that period the world learned the control of it. Air is the element of

The tent has made wonderful progress in the past two years, having been organized March 25, 1920, and now has a membership of 52. The various tents through Southern California have purchased two lots at Sawtelle upon which bungalows are to be built to house widows and daughters of veterans. These lots were paid for just two months after they had been purchased, which shows the wonderful work being done by these tents.

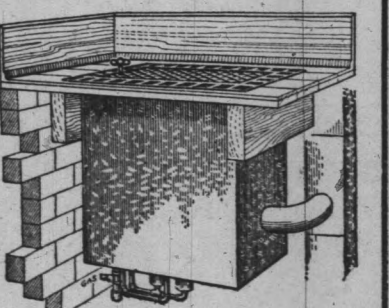

Mrs. Cora Jones, past president, has done much for the tent and the members feel certain that next year will be equally as prosperous, if not more so. After the installation a luncheon was served.

LIVE COLE CLASS PROGRAM TUESDAY

The program given by the Live Cole class of Central Christian church Tuesday night proved to be a great success. The church was crowded and the class cleared about $50, which will go to furnish their room in the new church building when it is completed.

Those who appeared on the program were Nellie Jetson, Doris and Dorothy Forbes, who gave a pantomime. Nellie Jetson gave several readings, Doris Forbes a whistling solo, and Dorothy Forbes a piano solo. Elva Bowen gave two very clever readings, the latter one being poetry written by Mrs. Frederick Farnham, to the Live Cole class, telling the object of the entertainment and all about the class. This was greatly appreciated by Rev. Cole and the class, and came as a surprise to all. Herbert Cantor, a professional tenor, sang several numbers, and Miss Zillah Withrow of Los Angeles gave two good readings. Miss Withrow is a Chatauque entertainer and has just returned from a tour.

The string orchestra from Los Angeles was made up of mandolins, guitars and banjos, eleven pieces in all. They played very good and were greatly enjoyed by Mrs. Carlock, a member of the class, gave two whistling solos, and it was she who taught the

They won great applause but were not permitted to respond to the cheering. The young ladies were now filling occasional professional engagements at some of the large hotels in Southern California and will soon appear at the Maryland.

SCHOOLS SPORTS SOCIETY COMING EVENTS PERSONALS

Principal A. L. Ferguson Tells Night School Work

Assemblies of night school students were called at the high school Monday and Tuesday evenings for the purpose of explaining in a broad way the scope of the school that they may carry the knowledge to others and advertise the fact that the instructors will be glad to have any vacancies in their classes filled, and to receive at any time applications for entrance to any existing class or for new classes that are desired.

In speaking of the assemblies, A. L. Ferguson, principal of the night school, indicated that it is a sort of continuous performance with pupils coming and going all the time. The fact that a pupil failed to enter at the beginning by no means cuts him or her out of the chance to enter now, because in many lines the work is so individual that a start can be made at any time, notably in the commercial classes and the mechanical arts or millinery.

Also, he made clear the fact that no examination is required or standard of education. The aim of the instructors is to help, not to embarrass pupils.

The Monday night assembly was addressed by instructors of the Monday and Wednesday classes. Arthur Oliver gave a good talk on the type of work and equipment offered by the mechanical department, especially featuring mechanical and architectural drawing making the statement that no school in Southern California is better equipped along those lines and it is fortunate in having two men willing to devote their time evening work, thus making possible its division with more individual attention to the pupil.

Henry E. Brockway, who teaches both elementary and advanced Spanish, also made some interesting statements, viz., that $0,000,000 people use the Spanish language and it ranks next to English in importance. He has traveled extensively in South America and Europe and bases his opinions on first-hand knowledge.

Because of having to referee two ball games, Mr. Hayhurst, the athletic coach, was not present at the assembly but his absence was an eloquent tribute to his work. George Lockwood, who teaches mechanical drawing, said some of the best work he had ever done had been done in night school, and urged students to attend regularly and take full advantage of their opportunities.

A. L. FERGUSON
Vice-Principal of Glendale Union High School and Principal of the Night School section.

Paul Webb, teacher of English and arithmetic, dwelt on the advantages arising from the use of effective English, which many who are mechanically inclined do not realize until it is too late for them to overcome the handicap.

At the Tuesday evening assembly, Mr. Smith, instructor in the shop, told something of the splendid opportunities offered there and urged that they be improved with no fear of embarrassing examinations. Competition is so keen now, he said, that the work shop tends to create the specialist. Only in the schools can students get the fundamental knowledge needed to make them all-around mechanics, and in the schools they learn them under teaching conditions which permit them to ask questions. He said he had been teaching night classes in Polytechnic high school and he wanted Glendaleans to realize how much better opportunities for individual instruction they have here than they would have in the city night schools.

Mr. Fuller spoke of his satisfaction in teaching night classes because they are made up of adults who know what they want and are willing to work to get it. He talked on the benefits of a knowledge of bookkeeping and of the financial rewards of work as certified accountants and for cost accounting.

Mr. Cook, a student, testified to his appreciation of the school offered by the evening work.

Mr. Rolf, in charge of the auto shop, pretended to be a shy speaker, but managed an excellent talk nevertheless, and said he could make places for four or five more students.

Mr. Mason, one of the students, told of the practical benefits he had realized in getting acquainted with his own auto, on which he is now making repairs.

Miss Hobbush, head of the millinery department, made a very pleasing response, announcing a class in millinery for Tuesday evenings and a dressmaking class about to be organized for Thursday evenings.

Mr. Ferguson explained the method of financing the night school from state and county funds appropriated on the basis of the previous year's attendance. Next year's funds will therefore depend upon the enrollment and average attendance this year. For that reason every absence of a student means loss of money by the school.

The total enrollment of the night school to date is 425 and has far surpassed the expectations of the faculty and board of trustees.

They would be glad to see the community take the fullest possible advantage of it.

Listening in on Eve

WASTED AMMUNITION

"I think it is just terrible, began the effective young creature in the beaded serge dress, 'the way girls are acting these days, don't you, Mr. Hunkum? I just can't understand it, can you?'"

"I certainly cannot," agreed the very eligible bachelor agreeably. "Since a very early age I haven't been able to understand it, and if they print a picture of me in the papers at the age of 104, saying beneath it that I owe my long life to constant smoking, drinking, and chewing, I still shall be unable to comprehend the mystery. What shall I do about it?"

"I guess you don't understand what I mean," pouted the sweet young thing prettily. "It's just your joking way to pretend you don't understand women, because I think you are perfectly wonderful the way you read character and— and everything like that. You couldn't have helped having heaps of experience, because girls are so silly, running after an attractive man and simply throwing themselves at his head, as they do!"

"You needn't deny it. What I meant was the way they shirk responsibility and things like that. When a girl marries I think she should just love to do housework, and cook and mend and everything! And I just read in the paper that Flossie Smithson, that awfully fashionable girl whose wedding to Lemuel Jones had columns and columns about it this summer, was giving up her brand-new house because of the lack of servants and that the young couple would spend the winter with her mother and father. I think it's terrible."

"It certainly is hard on her parents," agreed the eligible bachelor. "I call that giving dad and mother a raw deal."

"You don't get my meaning at all," the girl in the beaded serge told him reproachfully. "I guess, I have a clearer idea of—of duty than most girls. I am so terribly conscientious that I simply couldn't sleep if I thought I was shirking anything I ought to do. I think that is the reason so many perfectly fine men are afraid to marry, because girls won't cook and work—"

"Maybe it's because they've sampled some of the cooking beforehand," suggested the eligible bachelor brightly. "I shall never forget going with a poor, martyred friend of mine before his marriage to take Sunday dinner with his girl. He said her mother was away and she was going to cook that dinner herself, and it was going to be some dinner. It was. It took me two expensive weeks at the Springs to recover my former blooming state of health and James himself was very sober for a few months, but he had gone too far to back out and he married her, and heaven help the poor dog now! Most girls these days are not keen on anything but apartment hotels—"

"Oh, Mr. Hunkum," objected the sweet young thing strongly. "You have the most dreadful ideas! You don't know the average girl at all. I'm not a bit different from lots of girls, and all my life I have just loved to get out in the kitchen and fuss around. Why, our cook says I am a regular wonder, the things I do! And I think a woman should devote all her time to her home instead of racing around all the while and wasting time at bridge parties and getting home late and buying the dinner at the delicatessen store the way some girls do."

"That's why you—men as clever and thoughtful as you are—get such foolish ideas and go on and on and have nothing in their old age but loneliness and—everything! I feel so sorry for them! For what is there in life but one's own home? And girls aren't as extravagant as men seem to think them—why, I suppose most of them are like me—I may buy lots of clothes now, but when I marry I intend to help save and invest money so my husband can get ahead! Girls are not really as frivolous as they may seem, Mr. Hunkum! They just love to settle down and be domestic and everything!"

"Do you know," said the eligible bachelor gratefully, "you just confirm my own views, Miss Gribble. I'm sure you'll be just the girl I've turned sensible and am going to be married to a Montreal girl about holiday time."

The effective young thing in the beaded serge swallowed hard three times before she smiled politely. "Really?" she said at last. "Well, I'm sure I hope you'll be happy—but with men letting themselves be roped in by just a pretty face the way they do, you never can tell! I'm glad for one that no man can say I laid traps for him, Mr. Hunkum!"

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

A CHIN BANDAGE—CUTTING THE PULSE

When Billie Green fell on the ice and cut his chin on Tommie Cone's skate, simply because Tommie was trying to cut a figure eight in the middle of the frozen mill pond, there was great excitement among the small-boy skaters. Billie sat down hard on the ice and felt sick and dizzy at the sight of his own warm blood on the ice and on Tommie's skate, and he tried to stop the bleeding with a grubby handkerchief.

Tommie and his brother Lem helped drag off his skates as Billie fumbled with a half frozen strap.

"Does it hurt much?" questioned the boys, as Billie decided to go home. And though he insisted that he "could hardly feel it," Billie had a stinging sensation in his eyes, as if the tears were not far away.

Billie Starts Off for Home

So, pressing a red-stained handkerchief against the smarting laceration on his chin, Billie started ruefully for home.

His mother was out and his sister, Madge, was making fudge in the kitchen. At sight of Billie's bleeding chin Madge exclaimed sympathetically, and Dinah, the cook, ran for the bottle of iodine. The iodine smarted a good deal when Dinah patted it gently over the cut chin, but Billie blinked hard and tried to bear it. Madge let her fudge burn while she tried to stick a square of clean, dry muslin on Billie's chin. However, the little straps of adhesive plaster with which she strove to fasten it failed to stick. Billie's chin was too wet for the blood continued to trickle from the wound.

Madge was in despair when Noreen, the taller sister, advised that Noreen said, "What a wonderful chance to try out a tailed-bandage," and raced upstairs.

The family was still staring when Noreen came back with a piece of muslin, a note book, and a tape measure.

Referring to the notebook frequently, she cut the muslin into a strip four inches wide and a yard long.

This she cut straight up the middle to within three inches of the center.

The body, or uncut part of the muslin, was placed deftly across Billie's bleeding chin. The upper tails of the bandage were tied over the back of Billie's head. The lower tails were drawn up and tied on top of his head. Then the four tails were tied together on the top of Billie's straw-colored, curly head.

"You look like a wild Indian," comforted Madge, offering burnt fudge to take the hurt out of her words.

"But it keeps the dressing on his chin," Noreen said, proudly. And it did.

The doctor, alert, tense from sleeplessness, came into the family kitchen and closed the door leading upstairs.

A tired-looking woman sitting by the table that was covered with a red cloth rose, waiting for him to speak.

"I think your husband is a little better tonight, Mrs. Smith," said the doctor, kindly. "But through the night his pulse must be carefully watched. It may flicker a bit. If it does, and he appears weaker, he must be stimulated with the medicine I shall leave, and with external heat and fresh air. External heat means hot bottles or iron at the feet, extra blankets without too much weight, and perhaps some bags of hot salt in the beds. Heat is a good stimulant."

Hard Journey for Doctor

"I must go back to town," concluded the doctor.

continued the doctor. "There's a sick baby out north, and by morning the trail will be drifted over."

And as he spoke a blast of wind shook the little house, and drifting snow lashed in fury against the frosted window.

"I'm not afraid to be alone with him, doctor," said the woman, bravely.

"But before you go—if you'd please tell me a little more about pulses. They seem such treacherous things. I never quite understand why a doctor depends so much upon a pulse, in illness. I understand about temperature, but the pulse-count bothers me."

The doctor sat down on the crumpled-covered table, speaking gravely as was his way.

Explains About Pulses

"The pulse," he said, "is important as a symptom in disease because it is the distention of the arteries by a wave of blood forced through them by the contractive action of the heart."

"The interval between the pulse beats is occupied by the relaxation of the ventricles of the heart as they fill with blood."

"The pulse may be counted wherever a large artery approaches the surface of the body. There is the radial artery at the wrist, the temporal artery at the temple, and the facial artery near the corner of the mouth. But the radial or wrist artery is most generally counted."

"When counting a pulse place your index and middle fingers over the artery, making slight pressure. Thumb Must Never Be Used"

"Never count a pulse with your thumb because of the superficial artery in your own thumb, which you are likely to mistake for the pulse of your patient."

"Count the pulse for a full minute by your watch."

"Never press too heavily upon an artery, or you will compress the pulse, and be unable to count it."

"Don't worry your patient by counting his pulse too frequently, but watch it carefully."

And as the doctor left the woman to her lonely vigil she felt at last that she "understood" about pulse."

LORD CURZON IS HAUGHTY PERSON

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, British foreign minister, celebrates his 53rd birthday today, and received the congratulations of the diplomatic corps. Curzon was trained to statecraft almost from the cradle and is probably England's greatest expert on foreign affairs, especially as regards the East.

Curzon is a haughty and pompous bearing, he is not particularly popular from the personal standpoint, but is widely respected and trusted. His outward manner was aptly hit off by an old school-fellow many years ago in an irreverent couplet, which is still famous:

"My name is George Nathaniel Curzon, I am a most superior person. My hair is sleek, smooth is my cheek."

"I dine at Blenheim once a week." (Blenheim palace, the home of the Dukes of Marlborough, being the last word in princely mansions.)

SUES EBSETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Charles H. Ebsetts, owner of the Brooklyn National League club, was sued for divorce today. Mrs. Minnie F. Ebsetts alleges that the "squire of Flatbush," as he is known to baseball fans, was faithless, specifically alleging he stopped at a hotel in Albany, September 17, 1921, with a woman who is not named.

SPANISH FAD IS LATEST IN PARIS

Anything Spanish Gets by Now in Gay City of Europe

PARIS, Jan. 11.—This is the Spanish season in Paris; everything Spanish is in vogue.

Theaters are giving Spanish plays, vaudeville dancers are performing to the sound of castanets, orchestras are playing Spanish melodies, crowds are swaying in dance halls to Spanish tunes, art exhibits are favoring Spanish artists, people are reading Spanish novels, and women are affecting Spanish wear.

There seems to be no other reason for the Spanish vogue than that life in Paris goes by fads, and this is the latest and most startling fad Paris has produced since the war.

The Spanish craze has taken the theaters by storm. From the opera house to the cheapest vaudeville, Spain holds sway. A new one-act opera entitled "Spanish Time" has been given at the opera house, where it has been acclaimed as one of the most successful modern productions of recent years.

The famous novel of Blasco Ibañez "In the Shadow of the Cathedral," has been dramatized and is being played to a crowded house at the Opera Comique. Spanish numbers figure in almost every variety show and three review houses, the Folies Bergères, the Alhambra and the Olympia are now featuring Spanish numbers.

Raquel Meller, the famous Spanish beauty who sang at the Coliseum in London last season, is the dominating figure on the program at the Olympia, where crowds flock every night to hear her sing her famous folk songs and watch her graceful 15-minute act.

The public is devouring the novels of Blasco Ibañez, which are prominently displayed in the windows of all the book stores along the boulevards, while Paris society is flitting through the art galleries before the canvases of the well-known Spanish artist, Bertrand Masses, an exhibition of whose works was recently held in the rooms of the fashionable inter-alled club.

But the Spanish craze is not alone revolutionizing the activities of Parisians; it is about to decay what "Parisienne" shall wear, and according to an advance hint given the United Press by a well-known dressmaker of the rue Royale, bright yellow is to be the popular color for spring gowns, with bright red for evening wear, with black Spanish lace overdress.

Louisville—There is a painting in the Jefferson criminal court. It depicts Judge Harry W. Robinson after six years as criminal judge. An unusually large crowd had gathered in the courtroom when Judge Robinson prepared to adjourn for the last time.

Louisville—Campaigns by federal agents which have resulted in difficulties for three Louisville breweries, have failed to check the sale of beer. Quiet raids by members of the police department have uncovered hundreds of samples of real beer and Dr. Vernon Robbins, city chemist, has found many of the samples contain as much as 4.8 per cent alcohol. Because of the press of routine business, Dr. Robbins has called a halt in the many samples of beverages that have been sent to him for analysis.

It is said that warrants will be issued for those soft-drink stand owners who have been selling illegal beer.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

When the kidneys clog you must help them flush out the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

THE KNIGHTING OF AUNT MARTHA

Aunt Martha, here's my homage; you may have no degrees, But when it comes to cooking such chicken pies as these, No spectacled professor, no sage I ever knew Was worthy to be mentioned in the same day with you. You may not have been honored at Learning's musty shrine, Or have heard the world's laudation, but here's where you hear mine. Oh, war's quite useless heroes, who will may fancy them, But let me come, Aunt Martha, and kiss you: apron's hem!

Aunt Martha, here's a biscuit, so fluffy and so nice It will insure your mansion in highest paradise; And how this chicken gravy my fevered palate calms, For that you get a medal, with laurel leaves and palms. In prehistoric places let foolish folk go dig, I choose to do my digging in this young roasted pig. For what care I for fragments that date back to B. C., If I have apple dumplings that you have made for me?

Aunt Martha, you've some leaning religious I expect, But what it is, no matter, you're of the Lord's elect. The fragrance of that chicken must reach to heaven and more, To make it twice the heaven it ever was before. Let poets use papyrus or parchment for their scrolls, You write a poem in pie-crust that's balm to human souls. You're the Keeper of Ambrosia, you have reached joy's farthest heights And I christen you the Goddess of Gastronomy's Delights!

LIBRARIANS MET SANTA BARBARA

Mrs. J. C. Danford Returns From Most Interesting Trip

Mrs. J. C. Danford has returned from a meeting of librarians of the sixth district, which was held at Santa Barbara January 7, and reports a very fine program. The morning was given to round table talks on books for business men, for children, for foreigners, for high school students, and kindred subjects, and the afternoon to addresses.

One by Mr. Kersey, supervisor of part-time instruction in Los Angeles, in which he expressed his indebtedness for the help of librarians, was especially fine, she said, also a talk by Ethel R. Sawyer, on the coordination between the librarian and the book. The meeting was held in the Santa Barbara library, which Mrs. Danford considers almost ideal, and about 100 librarians were in attendance.

APPROVE PACT

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The British cabinet today was reported to have approved Lloyd George's draft of an Anglo-French pact. The British hold this will not be an alliance in the general sense of the term, but will be merely a defensive pact designed to aid France against German aggression.

GRIFFITH TO PUT TREATY IN EFFECT

New Irish Head Is Anxious to Get Machinery Working

DUBLIN, Jan. 11.—A temporary truce has been declared by the warring factions within Sinn Fein. The Dail Eireann has adjourned until St. Valentine's day and the Griffith government has a month's respite from the attacks of Eamonn De Valera and his followers in which to push forward plans for establishing the new Irish free state.

Arthur Griffith today declared he and his ministers would use all the machinery of the Dail to bring the free state into being. De Valera had objected that the Sinn Fein parliament, established by the "republic," could not be used for this purpose, but the treaty supporters, secure in their majority, point out that the former president and his followers recognized the Griffith government by returning to the Dail meeting yesterday after their stampede preceding the election.

"I will continue to act as president of the Dail and, if necessary, of the Irish republic," Griffith said, "until the machinery of the free state is set up and the people have an opportunity to choose officers of that state in an election. I will do my utmost to put the treaty with Great Britain into effect."
